

Clinical psychology assessment consideration in disability

Selecting appropriate assessments to address a referral question while also considering the presentation of the individual is a core competency for psychologists. However, often psychologists are not specifically trained in looking at assessment options for people with a disability.

In this PsychDD forum you will have an opportunity to network with peers while discussing relevant industry topics on assessments. Led by Eirini Lammi, the forum discussion will review and discuss clinical assessments within a broader lens of using psychological instruments. This will include a brief discussion on a few assessment measures available including the Universal Nonverbal Intelligence Test 2nd Edition (UNIT 2) as well as online platforms, but will also highlight the importance of the role of the clinician in completing a clinical assessment (i.e. not just reporting results).

Please Note: We encourage participants to bring along case studies so that we can look at what the referral is for, and how to develop a clinical assessment approach for each individual client.
